and women on the sidewalk in front of Rector's. Mr. White escorted her to the machine and put her in, saying to me: "Take this lady home and then come right back for me."

Miss Nesbit was then living at the Hotel Wolcott, if my memory serves me right. She impressed me as having brought about the situation. I took her to the hotel and then went back and took Mr. White to the Brook Club, No. 6 East Thirty-fifth street.

Several weeks passed before I saw Miss Nesbit again. In the latter et of February or the first of March, on a very cold Sunday night, I took Mr. White to Carl Berger's catering establishment, No. 7 West Thirty-sixth street. He was going to attend a dinner, and it was between 8 and 2 o'clock when he alighted from the hansom. I had pulled in from Fifth Hardly had Mr. White reached the sidewalk, when a horse hansont approached from Broadway, pulled up and Miss Nesbit jumped to the sidewalk and approached Mr. White, saying, as she held out her hands;

"Hello, Stanniel How have you been!" Mr. White shook hands. He seemed anxious to get up the stoop. They talked for a few minutes and he bade her good-night. He then hurried into Berger's place and she got back into her horse hansom and was

The second time Miss Neshit rode in Mr. White's cab was in the Intfer part of September, after his return from Europe. I had gone to Rector's to get him from a dinner. He came out on the sidewalk with three men besides bimself and two women, one of whom was Miss

"Take these two women home, Johnnie," he said to me.

This was about 1 o'clock in the morning If I am not mistaken I took the two women to the Hotel York. Later I returned and took Mr. White and his friends to the Knickerbocker Club, Thirty-second street and Fifth died from the effects.

Mr. White always rode alone in his electric hansom while I was driving It, save on such occasions as is: was accompanied by Mrs. White, his son Lawrence, his mother or his club friends. On these latter occasions his trips were to the Brook, Knickerbocker, Lambs, Manhattan and Union Clubs, and occasionally to the University Club. He also went to the various Broadway theatres, and late in the afternoon to places where his work

The machine was often loaned out by Mr. White to his friends, and was used in carrying young women to and from two theatres during a season of bad weather. I don't know the names of either these friends or the young women. Among these extra calls I made, as I remember, were a house in West Fifty-first street, also two others in West Forty-second street, an apartment-house in West Forty-fourth street and a hotel in West Track Repairer's Body Thrown Purdy, manager of the branch. Mr. White was a kind-hearted and generous employer. The reports which have been printed attacking his character I know to be lies.

I never once took Mr. White to his studio in Madison Square tower the company of a woman, and I never saw a woman enter there. As far as I can say, he was a good-living man, with perhaps a too-kind heart. I make this statement to The Evening World because I think it is the Fordaam Heights yards, to-day day, due to Mr. White. John Burns
